

NELSON FREED BY JUDGE MARSHALL

Federal Court Washes Its Hands of Utah National Bank Robbery.

A. W. Nelson, indicted by the United States grand jury on the charge of robbing the Utah National bank of $100,000, is now a free man. The case was dismissed yesterday morning by Judge Marshall, on a motion of District Attorney Harry E. Booth.

Mr. Booth, in asking for the dismissal of the case, stated that after Mr. Nelson had been indicted by the grand jury there arose a question whether or not the United States courts had jurisdiction in the matter or whether it was a case for the state courts to handle. United States Attorney General Bonaparte was asked for his opinion in the case, and held that Nelson was not an employee or an agent of the bank, and that the case was out of the hands of the government authorities.

It is not known what action, if any, the state authorities will take in the case. W. S. McCormick, president of the bank, said yesterday morning that no decision had been reached by the bank officers toward filing a complaint against young Nelson with the county attorney. The directors of the Utah National bank will hold a meeting early this week and the matter will be decided upon at that time.

Judge Marshall made no comment whatever on the case when the motion for dismissal was made yesterday morning. The motion was granted and court adjourned until Monday morning.

ADVOCATE OF THE WOOL GROWERS

Mrs. Elizabeth Bonnemort.

—From a photograph taken in the Japanese room of her residence.

With the eyes of the entire nation focused on the tariff hearings now in progress in the national capital, Utah will have the unique distinction of sending, so far as is known, the only woman in the entire United States to appear before the ways and means committee and argue on the proposed tariff revision. Utah's remonstrant will be Mrs. Elizabeth Bonnemort of 776 Brigham street, and her mission will be to help wage the fight against the proposed reduction of the tariff on wool. She left here for Washington last Friday, in company with Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Erickson of 553 Third avenue. Mr. Erickson was appointed by the Utah sheepmen as their official representative to protest against any wool tariff reduction.

Mrs. Bonnemort is said to be the only woman woolgrower in the entire west. She has shown rare business ability in managing her own wool business, and her flock of sheep is reputed to be the second largest of any flock owned by any individual in the west.

Mrs. Bonnemort will appear before the ways and means committee on Dec. 2 and 3, in both hearings on the wool tariff revision. She will be in the east for the next three weeks, and will visit friends in New York and St. Louis before returning.

Odd as it may seem to the conservative Washingtonians to be confronted by a woman as an advocate of the sheep industry, here in the west, where Mrs. Bonnemort is known throughout several states as the sheep queen of Utah, it is not thought at all strange that the interests of the wool growers should be given into her hands. Handicapped by the ingrained prejudice men have against a woman mixing up in such a manly business as wool growing, Mrs. Bonnemort has demonstrated that a determined, resourceful woman can succeed as a wool grower.

When, years ago, she started her career as an independent sheep raiser, disaster was predicted. No woman could make a success of that business, declared her male competitors. But after years of effort and genuine toil, after personal supervision over sheep camp and ranch, Mrs. Bonnemort can afford to smile triumph at the pessimistic men who predicted her speedy discomfiture.

As a result of the successes she has achieved, her income is said to be the largest of any woman in the west, whose fortunes are dependent upon their own enterprise and business sagacity.

Despite the strenuous years of work, Mrs. Bonnemort has found time to be an art lover and a collector of Oriental rarities. During the past few years she has delegated to others most of the cares and responsibilities connected with her vast sheep interests and has given up her time to social activities. Delightfully feminine, despite her stern experiences, gracious and charming in entertaining, Mrs. Bonnemort has come into her own by leaving the cold atmosphere of business to devote herself to friends and society. But that doesn't mean that every detail of her sheep interest is not under her eye. She guards her own interests and keeps herself well informed regarding the industry. When the sheep men who by long experience have learned to respect and ask her advice on all matters pertaining to wool, were looking about for a reliable and valuable advocate to represent them at Washington, Mrs. Bonnemort's name was one that was instantly suggested. And so Washington will have the privilege of seeing an active little woman, exquisitely groomed and groomed, getting right down to the business and doing her feminine best in convincing masculine reasoning to protect the interests of the western wool growers.
